'MATURE STUDENT' . . . Mrs. Avery honors grad.

They Won't Let Her Live Down B-Plus

Star Staff Writer

Kathleen Avery's grade point average at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has had just one blemish in the past three years - a B-plus her husband and children will never let her live down.

Otherwise, it has been straight A's for the mother of four, who graduates with high distinction Saturday afternoon with a bachelor of arts degree in university

She was also elected to Phi Beta Kappa this spring and chosen an NU Notable Woman by Mortar Board.

Mrs. Avery, who refers to herself as a "mature student," says she would encourage every woman to consider going back to school, if only to take courses through the Extension Division

"Just don't be afriad to start," she advises "That's the hardest part."

15-Year Absence She knows from experience. After a 15year absence from the classroom, Mrs. Avery took that giant step. But because she was older than the average student she thought her options were limited to teaching or nursing.

Not these days. Instead, she found doors wide open that never existed when

The university studies program offered her a chance to "do my own thing" in the field of criminal justice. Having been a policewoman 20 years before in Califorma, Mrs. Avery harbored "this abiding interest" in law enforcement.

During the past year, she was a volunteer probation counselor for Linoln's Municipal Court and she counseled women in county jail under a program established by St. Monica's Home. Her adviser in the College of Arts and Sciences, Prof. Leslie C. Duly, awakened an interest in history, which she chose for a second major.

Being older than the average student isn't a drawback, she says, admitting she was worried the other students would look up to her as a parent figure.

Took Same Lumps "It wasn't that way at all," she says. "I was pushed in the pit with the rest of the students and had to take lumps the way they do. If anything, they were far more helpful and cooperative with me.'

The faculty, too, obviously sensed she was there to learn. "They made things possible for me that I never knew existed, 'she recalls.

But most important in her college career was the support of her family, she says. Although they tease her about that one B-plus, she's sure the whole family, and especially her husband, are as proud and probably prouder — than she is. Avery, who is president of Dempster Industries in Beatrice, even agreed to move to Lincoln so his wife and two children wouldn't have to commute every day to the university. Now, when he's not out of town on business, he drives to Beatrice and back instead.

The children weren't so enthusiastic at first, she remembers, "until they saw the family wasn't going to fall apart.'

"After raising six children (including two stepchildren), you're either organized or in chaos. I was used to doing things all the time, so when the kids were all in school, there was nothin' to do.

One Handicap

There is one handicap of starting school late, however, she has decided. Because "I've already lived half my life," she considers some careers "closed.

Were she younger, she might consider going on to law school or even joining the police department. Instead, she has accepted an assistantship in the NU History Department, which may eventually lead to a doctorate.

Bribes Sell U.S. Arms By BROOKS JACKSON WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon is telling American arms makers they must frequently use bribery of foreign officials to sell their goods in the Middle East.

A document prepared by a Pentagon arms salesman for use by U.Š. weapons manufacturers says the bribes sometimes can total millions of dollars and reach very high levels of Middle Eastern governments.

The document does not name any countries where bribes are paid or any American companies that pay them. However, Northrop Corp. is accused in a government lawsuit of paying $30 million over three years to sales agents and consultants without adequate accounting.

Securities and Exchange Commission documents indicate that at least some of this money was paid to an Iranian attorney and to a wealthy Saudi Arabian agent. Northrop is fighting to keep details of these payments secret. Saudi Arabia recently signed a contrac to buy more than $756 million of Northrop's F5E "Tiger II" jet fighters.

The Pentagon document was prepared last year by Joseph K. Hoenig, an official of the Defense Security Assistance Agency, for use by trade associations of U.S. arms makers. It is unclassified and a copy is on file publicly in connection with the SEC's proceedings against Northrop.

Pentagon spokesman Joseph Laitin said Friday he had not read the document, but "We are foursquare against bribery." Asked if overseas arms bribery is going on presently, he said, "I trust not.

Hoenig's paper gives a different impression. It says U.S. arms makers sometimes have no choice but to pay excessive fees to local agents who have or buy influence with their own governments. It says these Middle Eastern agents have been in business for 2,000 years and will be hard to eliminate entirely.

The paper says the agents apply influence variously through friendships, family ties with government officials and through "payment of substantial sums of money to individuals in high government positions with somewhat lesser amounts paid to lower echelon government officials.'

"One local agent had admitted to this writer that he has three members of the National Assembly (parliament) of the country on retainer fees for the purpose of obtaining inner circle intelligence and to promote the sales potential of his principal's product."

The document adds, "Influence is not always related directly to a cash gratuity. It can include the rent-free use of a villa in France or a flat in London along with car and servants. Sometimes the government official is a silent partner in the agency or other business completely divorced from his normal activities from which he receives financial benefit."

The document says the cost of the agent's fees and bribes is included in the price of the arms paid by the government in question. It says the agent's "influence" can sometimes lead those governments to buy shoddy or ill-suited military hardware.

One country bought used aircraft that were "plagued with maintenance problems," so bad that only two or three of them were able to fly at any given time. Another desert country, dealing through the same agent, bought European-style vehicles that overheated and stalled in the hot summer months.

American arms makers must compete for sales with French and British weapons makers who "have no compunction to agreeing to excessive fees," the document said. One French firm reportedly paid $40 million to an agent who handled a contract worth $200 million to $300 million, it said.

Group Rejects FBI, CIA Monitors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee rejected as "unacceptable" Friday a Ford administration proposal that CIA and FBI monitors be allowed to observe the questioning of Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said the committee voted unanimously to enter the active phase of the probe and to authorize him to issue subpoenas if they prove necessary.

"We decided that the serious investigative work should now go forward," Church said. "The tempo of the investigation will now be stepped up."

He told a news conference the committee will begin a wide-ranging review of past and present covert intelligence activities, including "issues raised as to assassinations." Church said the request for monitors to sit in on White House, but he thought it had been initiated by the CIA. "The committee voted unanimously to reject the proposal because we thought there should be no inhibition or possible inhibition" of witnesses, Church said

The initial phase of the investigation — interviews, the taking of sworn depositions and formal hearings — will be closed to the public, Church

"The committee will decide later what phases of its investigation will go public," he added.

The Ford administration is continuing to furnish the committee with requested material but at a slower pace than is desired, Church said. No requests for documents have been refused nor has there been any sign that material has been destroyed, he said.

He emphasized that the initial phase of the investigation will require a full disclosure by the CIA and other agencies of all present covert activities, "the details of which will be closely kept."

The investigative panel has agreed to a procedure to safeguard "highly sensitive" material, which may not be relevant to its investigation, the chairman said.

In those cases in which Ford asks to exclude documents or other material, Church said he and vice chairman John Tower, R-Tex., will examine them to see if the information is truly irrelevant.

Church said the panel is pursuing its request for raw documents from the Rockefeller Commission, which is also investigating CIA activities.

The story said the Pentagon is alarmed at the size of the fee which was called the biggest in history — and has called it to the attention of the Saudi government.

Khashoggi caused a stir in this country by buying some California banks. Last January he was rebuffed by shareholders when he bid to buy one-third of the First National Bank of San Jose, Calif., after buying two banks in Walnut Creek two years ago.

Rick enjoyed the teaching experience so much that he's training to be an instructor in standard first aid. For himself, Rick feels that

Cut Of 9% Proposed In Weapons Programs

Che New Hork Cimes

Washington - The Senate Armed Services Committee, setting the stage for the annual defense debate in the Senate, proposed Friday about a 9% annual defense debate in the Senate, proposed Friday about a 9% reduction in the Defense Department's weapons procurement and research programs in the coming fiscal year.

In acting on the military authorization bill, the committee approved most of the major weapons programs proposed by the Defense Department. At the same time, the committee made deeper, acress-the-board reductions in Pentagon funding than has been its practice in recent years.

The Senate committee also cut significantly deeper than the House Armed Services Committee, which earlier this week reduced the weapons programs by less than 7%.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the committee, predicted the Senate would sustain the committee's judgment that "tremendous cuts" should not be made in the defense budget pending a review of the nation's foreign policy in the post-Vietnam period.

A Method Of Persuasion

"I don't want to run everywhere where people-are in trouble," Stennis said. "But as I have seen things develop, you get results when you are armed. It is not the only way to persuade people, but it is a helpful way.

The immediate inclination among Senate liberals who have been critical of the size of the defense budget was not to press on the Senate floor for further across-the-board cuts but rather to challenge, probably unsuccessfully, individual weapons programs.

Thus, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., will lead an effort to stop development of the Air Force's B1 strategic bomber, which the liberals

The Senate committee eliminated $222 million in advance procurement funds requested for the bomber but approved $597 million in continued development, including a fourth prototype

The committee also rejected funds to procure additional F111 bombers, which is regarded as a potential substitute for the B1.

Action Said 'Green Light'

Taken all together, Stennis interpreted the committee's action as a "green light" for the decision next year on whether to produce the B1

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., will renew a fight he lost within the committee to eliminate $143 million for development of more accurate, more powerful warheads for intercontinental ballistic missiles - a development that he contends would have a destabilizing effort on the nuclear arms balance.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., will offer a floor amendment to stop procurement of the airborne command post, known as AWACS, that he claims could be easily jammed by an enemy. The committee bill provides $690 million to buy six of the planes.

Gary Hart Leads Scoring

Within the committee, the three freshmen Democratic members scored a victory when Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo, pushed through an amendment deleting $6.8 million for development of a new type of nerve gas known as a binary. The binary nerve gas program, if pursued, ultimately could cost as much as $2 billion.

Record Expected In Winter Wheat

winter wheat crop of 1.62 billion bullion bushels last Dec. 23, the bushels, up 16% from the 1974 harvest and 1% more than estimated initially last December, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said that based on prospects May 1 the harvest is expected to be 228 million bushels larger than the previous record of about 1.4 billion bushels last year.

A bumper crop would do much to replenish U.S. wheat reserves, expected to be the smallest in 27 years by July 1.

Winter wheat, planted in the fall and harvested the following summer, accounts for about three-fourths of total U.S. wheat production. It is grown in most states but primarily in the Great Plains from Texas to Canada.

There was no estimated of 1975 production of spring-planted wheat, but officials have projected a harvest of about 525 million bushels based on normal yields. Thus, including the new winter wheat estimate, total output this year could be a record 2 1 billion bushels.

Last year's total wheat production was slightly less than 1.8 billion bushels. Although a record, the 1974 harvest was far less than the crop of nearly 2.2 billion bushels USDA predicted one year ago.

Kansas wheat production, traditionally the largest, was estimated at 389.4 million bushels, compared with 319 million in Wheat prices have declined sharply the past six months because of a drop-off in exports and prospects for a huge crop this year. The USDA's average national farm price on April 15 was $3.69 a bushel compared with $4.87 last Nov. 15.

Reserve stocks of wheat currently are expected to be 230 million bushels on July 1, the official start of the new 1975-76 marketing year, the smallest carryover supply since 1948 and down slightly from 247 million on hand last July 1.

Although there had been widespread reports of farmers intending to plow under part of their winter wheat to protest falling market prices, the USDA production estimate did not show this had been significant.

A team teaching approach to economics, bringing together an economist and a businessman in the classroom, could provide students with a new depth of focus, according to James N Ackerman, a Lincoln insurance

Ackerman, who addressed the annual Phi Kappa Phi banquet at Nebraska Wesleyan University, said he came to this conviction after conducting a seminar last year on the St Olaf campus

Ackerman, vice president and general counsel of Bankers Life Nebraska and chairman of the NWU Board of Governors, led the seminar which was arranged by the Institute of Life Insurance on the topic of the social responsibility of business

In commenting on what he learned about students during his seminar, Ackerman said "an attitude of distrust and suspicion was not apparent as I had expected it would be, and

A Madison-Lincoln Link

"It's good to know that elections are still determined on the basis of issues and not emotional scare tactics," said Mayor Paul Soglin of Madison, Wis., in a telegram of congratulations to Mayor-elect Helen Boosalis.

Madison is one of those demographically similar cities which is always lumped in with a number of others, including Lincoln, whenever city officials or consultants talk about what is happening in cities of similar size and character across the nation. Lincoln and Madison seem to go together like strawberries and cream whenever a study cranks out data on cities in the 100,000 to 250,000 bracket.

There was an attempt to tie the two cities together in yet another vein prior to Lincoln's city election Tuesday when some business interests in this community sought to exploit the opinions of a defeated Madison city councilman who claimed that his city had suffered because radicals had taken over city government. It was absurdly implied that Mrs. Boosalis and at least two candidates for the Lincoln City Council were radical-liberals of the same stripe and that Lincoln would suffer a terrible fate.

Fortunately there was little need to respond to the inaccuracies and distortions of a generally ineffective presentation.

It should be noted again, parenthetically, that Mrs. Boosalis, before this election, had never been considered a liberal, let alone a radical. Some of Mr. Soglin's activities while a student at least lent some small measure of credibility to such a label.

But the main lesson is that people should not be labeled, and that it is folly to try to lump together the personalities and problems of different cities. Such broadbrush labeling just does not work.

It should be said, too, that the message which some people tried to put across to Lincolnites does not stand up under objective scrutiny. And so far as Madison voters are concerned, the regime of the "radicalliberal" Mr. Soglin has not hurt their city. It has suffered a good fate, apparently. Soglin was overwhelmingly reelected this spring.

The next time a study is done and comparable cities are mentioned, it should be noted that the majority of voters in both Madison, Wis., and Lincoln, Neb., don't respond favorably to nonsense campaigning.

Cheers For Kawasaki

What is being billed as the most modern motorcycle manufacturing plant in the world will be dedicated officially here in Lincoln today.

The story of Kawasaki Motors Corp., the third largest marketer of motorcycles in the nation, picking Lincoln as the site for its first American plant; the decision to invest up to $20 million in converting and adding on to the facility purchased northwest of the city; the employment opportunities which have opened up and now the production line in full swing all add up to a most satisfying chapter in the history of Lincoln's economic development.

Lincoln is proud to host the officers and personnel of Kawasaki Motors Corp. and its parent firm who have come to the city from Japan and California to dedicate the corporation's new manufacturing and assembly plant.

Last year's promising announcement that Lincoln had been the one city chosen from some 80 that were considered, and that production would commence upon completion of needed construction work actually has become fact - and that isn't always the way it is with hopeful, promising industrial development-type announcements.

But Kawasaki followed up its promising announcement with the commitment of much of its resources in order to enter the American motorcycle market in a big way. Several thousand bikes have already rolled off the Lincoln assembly line, and during this year the corporation hopes to increase both the production rate and the payroll at its Lincoln plant.

The Star is pleased to use this official dedication as the occasion to again welcome Kawasaki to the Lincoln scene. May it be a pleasant, profitable, mutuallybeneficial relationship.

Whose Decision?

WASHINGTON - Compiled for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is a thick volume made up of cables from around the world following the fall of Vietnam asking more or less bluntly this question: Who makes the foreign policy of the United

There are variants on this theme: Who is responsible for decisions taken? And even, whom can we trust when we hear conflicting views on a policy issue?

For Kissinger, trying to pull together the tangled threads of American policy following the debacle, this is a black book that cannot be simply filed and forgotten. For the inquiries come from foreign ministers, from prime ministers and presidents. While the tone is not unfriendly, it is nevertheless in-

And there is no answer or, at any rate in this moment of doubt and uncertainty, there can be no unequivocal response. Foreigners, even those best informed and responsible, have always found it difficult to understand the American system of divided powers with the executive and the legislature sharing power even on foreign policy to some degree.

In the aftermath of the debacle, as Kissinger muses, the nation might have had a Dunkirk reaction. We shall all stand together with unity in diversity. We will demonstrate to the world that we are one people able to withstand a blow to our pride and prestige.

 $\Leftrightarrow \Leftrightarrow \Leftrightarrow$ But that was not to be. The abyss between Congress and the State Department and the White House, to speak of only one of the fissures in the body politic, is wider than ever. Old differences over policy have, if anything, been accentuated. Foremost on this list is Turkey and the Greek-Turkish quarrel over Cyprus.

the small society

DEAN ACHESON dignity and loyalty . . .

Congressional action to prevent further military aid to Turkey still stands, with little chance the blockade will be lifted short of action on Cyprus not presently in the cards. As Kissinger sees it, he has gone a long way to try to meet the demands of the members of Congress chiefly responsible for putting up the barrier. Twice he has held lengthy meetings with Representatives John Brademas, Paul Sarbanes and Benjamin Rosenthal to try to convince them that the ban can only be harmful to American security and the NATO struc-

Not only that but he showed them the most important cables passing between the department and Ankara in an effort to convince them that everything possible was being done to persuade the Turks to show some give on Cyprus. In later sessions with Brademas, he debated the issue with all his brilliant forensic skill.

But the three were unmoved. They felt the cables showed the secretary had not taken a firm line with the Turks. Instead he had tried persuasion and sweet reasonableness. Until he was willing to state that the foreignaid law had been broken when the Turks used American weapons for other than defensive purposes and bring Ankara to account on this score, the ban will remain

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved a resolution by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Minority Leader Hugh Scott to resume the flow of military materiel.

But the vote was only 9 to 7 which is pretty narrow for that body on an issue endorsed by the leadership and sought by the administration. Once on the Senate floor, it would have tough going and certainly it would be defeated in the House.

That is only one impasse, although it is extremely important as Kissinger prepares to go to a NATO meeting with Greece and Turkey and the strength of the alliance on the southern flank on the critical list. Divergent views on how to avert war in the Middle East smolder just below the surface following the failure of Kissinger's second round of shuttle diplomacy.

The secretary is embattled with his enemies, notably in Congress and in the press, determined to cut him up into little pieces. But Kissinger is fighting it out with the high articulateness, the public presence, which have stood him in good stead in the past.

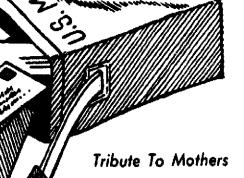

interview to Barbara Walters on NBC's "Today" show and, somewhat to his surprise, she is releasing it in five segments. He neither old nor avant. is speaking in St. Louis and Kansas City.

A striking parallel is with Dean Acheson, Harry Truman's secretary of state, who in his last months in office was set upon by violent opponents. Acheson stood on the dignity of the office and the loyalty of his president. Kissinger is in the sweaty arena giving his critics as good as he and party leader.

Methinks they do protest too much. Our two senators voted for the controversial confirmation of Secretary Earl Butz who historically has sold out family agriculture to the best interest of corporate agriculture and agribusiness. ### Federal Encroachment?

I think Senator Frank Lewis should be commended on his stand concerning the Motorcycle Helmet Law. If we would look back a few years at the national level, we could observe another body of men who neglected to exercise their constitutional obligation as elected representatives. They chose to be, aside from a mere handful, a body of "yes-men." Because of this lack of responsibility, we were bogged down for over a decade in a "no-win" war. We sacrificed approximately 50,000 of our best young men, and spent ourselves $150 billion further into debt. Now, the parallel between what Senator Lewis is trying to do and what a minority of our national legislators tried to do, at the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, was an attempt to exercise their constitutional obligation. If we are going to let the federal government legislate on the state level, then why the pretense of having a state legislature.

How To Tell The Difference?

Sargent, Neb. On June 29, 1974, a United States congressman spoke the following lines in the House of Representatives:

"The essential error of the 'why win' policy is that the administration has been hypnotized by the naive notion that it is possible to embrace the Soviet Union and to accept the communist predator itself as a companion among the free in search of a just and genuine peace. The only peace the Soviet Union seeks is the peace of total conquest. The administration's Today's Mail tragically misguided reading of Soviet intentions has become the impetus for a new mood of misplaced trust and accommodation.

We are letting down our guard." Then, speaking of the Western Hemisphere, he continued; "It is the task of our nation to give the Monroe Doctrine a new adaptation as a fundamental tenet of U.S. policy.'

These statements are applicable to the situation as it exists today. Millions of Americans are waiting to hear our President, with his new authority, reiterate this call to sanity. It is the answer to what Secretary of State Kissinger is doing to U.S. world policy today. Incidentally, Gerald E. Ford, congressman from Michigan, was the one who made the statements quoted

Communism And Full Stomachs

Omaha, Neb. I have asked myself, where does communism get the attractiveness to draw the masses? I compared the armies of freedom and how hard it is to get volunteers to defend it and fight for it. Freedom isn't much to a people who have no food, no job nor any security for their families. American tourists have said to the peasants of China, Cuba and other peoples before communism took over: "How wonderful it is to be free and we need you on our side.' But what good is freedom if you are skin and bones? I tried to no avail to find something in the Holy Bible condemning slavery as sinful and calling for it to be abolished. Instead, it said to be content with whatever state you find yourself in, whether you be a servant or ruler. Then I thought how the Civil War gave the black man his freedom to go on working like a slave for little or nothing.

Peasants living under communism don't have freedom but they have full stomachs and the means to have a little security.

What good is freedom if you are starving to death? DONALD BRANTZ * * *

NEW YORK - If President Ford is bluffing about his determination to run for election in his own right next year, he is doing a persuasive job of it. The seven-man committee that met to begin planning his campaign this week was one that any He is telling his story to Republican candidate would reporters. He gave a 45-minute wish to have in his corner experienced, able, spawning the traditional Goldwater-Rockefeller split, a guard

> The appointment of such a committee, of course, does not commit Ford to running, any more than did his latest newsconference protestation that there should be "no skepticism" about his intention to run. And it still is true that he needs to keep proclaiming himself a candidate in order to maintain some political authority as president

> Nevertheless, taking a first actual step toward a campaign is bound to make Ford somewhat more believable in his declared intent. And Dean Burch, the spokesman for the Ford planning group, had both history and good sense on his side when he said after the first meeting, "I'm inclined to think President Ford is the only logical candidate for the Republican nomination."

Or, as Ford himself put it at his news conference: "I believe that I have the best opportunity to solidify the Republican Party, getting strength from both the right as well as the left." ☆ ☆ ☆

Besides, every poll shows that Ford is generally regarded as a "nice guy" and "decent," whatever else might be thought of him. That is not only a valuable political image in itself; but someone from his own party who turned on a "nice guy president and snatched the nomination away from him might find himself looked upon as a power-hungry "bad guy" who evoked vibrations of Richard Nixon et als.

Republican primary fight. The fact that no Southern Republican figures are in the Ford planning committee no doubt reflect the Southern strength of Ronald Reagan, who clearly will run if Ford doesn't, and who may run in any case. Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee says he may run, too, even if it has to against Ford. Sen. Charles Percy of Illinios has not ruled out a race, John Connally is lean and hungry, and if Ford stepped aside, Vice President Rockefeller probably would plunge in.

But Rockefeller could hardly run against the man who appointed him vice president, so another virtue of a Ford candidacy would be to head off a bitter Rockefeller-Reagan clash that could raise again the old pre-Nixon Republican divisions. That clash would be more symbolic than real, since Rockefeller has moved sharply away from the "Eastern liberal" position: but to Republican conservatives, the image lingers. The primaries pose the greatest danger for Ford. He could lose to Reagan in some states where Reagan strength might be greater than in the nation as a whole. Voters, moreover, have been known to rebuke a president in a state primary — for, say, high prices — while fully intending to vote for him in the general election.

Most presidents can rise above such momentary setbacks within their own party. But Ford, the instant president, has never been tested in a national election. One or two losses in state primaries might be enough to raise fatal questions in Republican minds about his vote-getting ability.

Epileptics Less Likely To Adjust To Handicap

Star Staff Writer

"Persons with epilepsy live in a state of ambiguity," Dr. George J. Golden said Friday at a Conference of the Medical and Social Management of Epilepsy.

Because epilepsy is "here now, gone tomorrow and can strike anytime ... he (an epileptic) never gets accustomed to his handicap," said Goldin, director of research at the New England Rehabilitation Research Institute

"A person with a heart, speech or hearing defect constantly has a chance to adapt, just like those around him have a chance to adapt to his handicap," Goldin said.

'Communicate Anxiety'

"But those around a person with epilepsy never have that chance," he explained, "so they feel anxiety and communicate that anxiety to the person with epilepsy."

In addition to epilepsy's mysteriousness and inconsistency, Goldin said, our culture's values also impede the acceptance and understanding of Living in a society that encourages and rewards conformity, perfection, independence and competition, epileptics have very limited access to acceptance, Goldin said.

"We live in a culture that abhors deviance, punishes devience. Conformity is still important," he said. "A person with epilepsy is a deviant and he knows it. Our culture looks at epilepsy and equates it with mental retardation, magic, religion and punishment."

Ideal Is Perfection Although human beings are not perfect, Goldin said society prizes and loves perfection, sees epilepsy as a symbol of imperfection, and

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service said Friday that the National Farmers Organization, one of the largest farm groups in the nation, has lost its tax-exempt

An IRS spokesman confirmed the decision but declined to Sources said the NFO had not decided whether to fight the IRS ruling through the courts, though such a lawsuit is considered a possibility.

"It may very well be that NFO will continue to contest the issue," said one source.

Not Clear

It was not immediately clear whether the IRS ruling would cost the organization money, because it reportedly has lost money steadily for several years and so would have no profits to be taxed.

"It's a serious problem, but nobody knows right now whether its going to cost anybody a nickel," said one source close to the NFO. "Who knows what the IRS can do to anybody if they're out to get them?"

The source said the NFO

The charges stem from a Jan. 31 incident where Beardsley and his brother, James, allegedly forced Officer Jeff Olson at gun point to disrobe, handcuffed him to a pipe and left taking his revolver with them.

The NFO previously had filed returns as a nonprofit corpolabor unions because the farm group performs "collective bargaining" for its members.

But the IRS ruled the NFO is actually a marketing organization that sells its members' goods and thus must be taxed as an ordinary corporation. No Impact

It does not appear that the IRS ruling will have any direct impact on NFO's members. One tax expert familiar with the case said that farmers probably would still be able to deduct their NFO dues from their taxable income as a business

Chaotic Days In Embassy Compressed Life

©Che New Hork Cimes

By SYDNEY H. SCHANBERG

Bangkok, Thailand — For the 800 foreigners, including this correspondent, who spent two weeks in the French Embassy in Phnom Penh after the Communists took over, the time seemed like a chaotically compressed generation of life.

A baby born, another died. A dozen marriages were performed — all marriages of convenience to enable Cambodians to get French passports so that they could excape the country and its peasant revolution.

There were days of deep sorrow. Cambodians without foreign papers had to go on the trek into the countryside. Friends were torn apart, families broken up as Cambodian husbands were separated from their European wives. On those days sobbing could be heard in every corner of the compound.

The water supply ended a few days after our arrival. After that we had to rely on water tapped from our air-conditioners and that delivered periodically in barrels by the new government. There was never enough for bathing, and the odor of unwashed people was ripe.

With food limited and with no running water, sanitation deteriorated and there were scores of cases of diarrhea — the evidence of which filled every walkway and garden in the compound.

Never As Difficult
The compound was difficult at times, but never as difficult as was suggested by the radio news reports we kept listening to, which said our situation was "more and more precarious."

Sometimes when we were hearing those bulletins we were swilling scotch and smoking long cigars.

And there were days when hopes rose, days when the rumors said that evacuation was imminent.

Heros and knaves emerged — more of the latter than the former. Out of the shortages grew tensions and rivalries between groups.

Between French officials living well in the embassy and French civilians living in the driveways and gardens outside. Between the outside French and the French staff of Calmette Hospital, who were also living fairly well. And between the non-French foreigners, including the favorite targets—Americans and journalists—and everyone else.

There was more selfishness than sharing A minor example: Put a pack of cigarettes on a table for 10 seconds, turn around and it would be gone.

This correspondent emerged into Thailand last Saturday after 13 days in the embassy and the next three and a half days on the road. Hundreds of other refugees remained in the embassy even longer, arriving in Thailand Thursday.

To describe what life was like in the compound is to describe sheer incongruity. A French doctor walked the hospital's pet sheep around the gardens (the hospital's pet gibbon was taken by the Communists and led around the street outside in a pink dress). Some of the Frenchmen in the compound fed their dogs better than other people were able to feed their children.

Our group of foreigners lived in the building that used to be an ambassador's residence. Eighteen of us, using sofa cushions and pillows as mattresses and linen tablecloths for blankets, slept on the floor of a large living room — surrounded by humming air-conditioners, an elegant upright piano, a crystal chandelier and some of the embassy's best silver, except for the silver teapots, which were used to boil water over wood fires outside.

For a few days it might have been fun — a curious experience to dine on when you got home. But as time wore on nerves frayed more and more, and hardly an hour went by without an argument somewhere in the compound, usually over something petty.

Though some people managed not to fare too badly, for most of those in the compound the situation was far more than a series of annoyances; there was nothing funny about it.

There was nothing funny for Mrs. Nha, an Air France employe, who sat sobbing under a tree on the morning of April 19. Her mother and father were missing, and in two days she would be forced to take her young son and go into the countryside herself. "I was an optimist," she said as the tears coursed down her cheeks. "Not only me. All Cambodians here thought that when the Khmer Rouge came it would be all welcomes and cheering and bravo and the war would be over and we would become normal again. Now we are stunned, stunned."

There was nothing funny for Mrs. Praet, a Belgian whose Cambodian husband was being forced to leave her and join the March. As she wept into her handkerchief he embarced her gently. "Courage, ma cherie. Courage, ma cherie," he whispered. She could not control herself and her small body shook with her weeping as their two little girls looked on uncomprehending.

There was nothing funny for a government officer who cannot be named here who vainly took refuge in the embassy. Soon he and his large family had to leave. A brave soldier for five years, wounded several times, he was reduced to hopelessness and was crying like a child.

Could Have Escaped

"I could have gotten out of the country 10 days ago," he said, "but I believed the United States would come and help, do something for us. If you get out, please write about this. Tell the world what is happening here."

Some Cambodian women, realizing that infants could not survive the long trek, tearfully gave theirs to French families for foster care or adoption.

"My first baby, my only baby!" a mother in shock shrieked. "Save him! Save him! You can do it."

It was raining as the Cambodians left. The hospital's sheep, tethered to a truck, was bleating mournfully; no one paid any attention.

At one time about 1,300 people were living in the attractively landscaped compound, which is 200 yards by 250 yards or so. Then the Communists ordered out all Cambodians without foreign passports or papers, which forced about 500 people to take to the road.

Family or not, we all lost someone close to us, and when the Cambodians trudged through the gate we foreigners stood in the front yard, weeping unashamedly.

The first thing the Communists did was declare that they did not recognize the compound as an embassy, simply as a regroupment center for foreigners under their control. This shattered the possibility of asylum for two high officials of the ousted regime who had sought sanctuary. On the afternoon of April

FRENCH COMPOUND . . . in Phnom Penh after surrender of capital.

20, in a gloomy drizzle, Lt. Gen. Sirik Matak, who was among those marked for execution, and a few other leading figures were taken away in the back of a sanitation truck.

Throughout our stay the Communists continued their campaign of proving their primacy — refusing to let a French plane land with food and medical supplies, refusing to allow us to be evacuated in comfort by air instead of by rutted road in the back of military trucks, and, finally, shutting down the embassy radio transmitter, our only contact with the outside world.

At the same time they did not physically harass or abuse us — the only time our baggare was searched was by Thai customs officials when we corssed the border — and they did eventually provide us with food and water. The food was usually pigs, which we had to butcher.

Though the new rulers were obviously trying to inflict a certain amount of discomfort — they kept emphasizing that they had told us in radio broadcasts to get out of the city before the final assault and that by staying we had deliberately gone against their wishes — but there was another way to look at it. From their point of view we were being fed and housed much better than their foot soldiers are and should not complain.

But complain we did — about the food, about each other, about the fact that embassy officials were dining on chicken and white wine while were eating plain rice and washing it down with heavily chlorinated water.

Though there were exceptions, constructive figures who worked hard to make the compound run smoothly, our squabbling and our refusals to share and cooperate presented a spectacle that may have reinforced the Communist notion of us as people too selfish and egoistical to live in a less-than-affluent Asian society.

Outside the gates of the compound soldiers were living in simple fashion — sleeping on the ground and subsisting on rice and salt, with an occasional chicken or piece of pork.

Appearance Of Normalcy

Among the embassy denizens, even in the midst of the tears and heartache, a search for the appearance of normalcy went on.

A Frenchwoman picked orange-colored blossoms from a bush and twined them in her laughing child's hair. Gosta Streijffert, a former Swedish army officer from a patrician family who is a Red Cross official, sat erect in a straight-backed chair he had carried outside and read a British news magazine with his monocle fixed.

At a table nearby, a United Nations official and a Scottish Red Cross medical team played bridge and drank whisky: Someone carped loudly about the way his partner conducted the bidding.

Why was there not more sharing, more of a community spirit? What made us into such acquisitive, self-protective beings?

Why did all the Asians live outside, in the heat and rain, while many of the Caucasians, like my group, lived inside, with air-conditioning? We explained it by saying the living arrangements were up to the embassy, but this was clearly not an answer. Was our behavior annd our segregation a verdict on our way of life?

Anud the generally disappointing behavior of the Westerners there were exceptions — people who rose above the squabbling and managed to hold things together.

There was Francios Bizot, a Frenchman who worked for many years in the countryside restoring ancient temples and ruins. He lost his Cambodian wife and mother-in-law, who were forced on the march. Yet his relationship with the Communists was strong and they trusted him, for he had met some in his work in the interior and he speaks Khmer fluently.

Khmer fluently.

It was Bizot who, in the early days of our confinement, was allowed to scout for food and water.

And it was he who successfully argued the cases of some Asians whose papers were not in perfect order.

A number of people who were in the compound probably owe their futures to him.

Some Constructive

There were others who preformed constructive roles, among them Douglas A. Sapper III, an American with a Special Forces background who was involved in a private airline company.

Sapper, as everyone calls him, organized our group's kitchen and food rationing to make sure supplies would last. His ranger training — and his colorful language, none of which can be reproduced here — kept us eating regularly and kept pilferers out of the larder.

These special people nowwithstanding, the general level of behavior remained disappointing throughout our stay. We held constant group meetings and made endless lists of who was sup posed to perform what chores, and we were constantly going through the movements or organizing, but we never really got organized.

Occasionally, however, there was an occurence dramatic enough to break this morphic aura — such as the sighting of a Chinese plane on April 24 coming in for a landing at the airport, possibly carrying high Cambodian and Chinese officials from Peking.

There was also the unexpected arrival the day before of the seven Russians who had been holding out at the Soviet Embassy. They had been desperately trying to make friendly contact with the new Cambodian leaders to counterbalance Chinese influence.

Russians Failed

But is was the Chinese and not the Russians who had been supplying the Khmer Rouge with arms. The Cambodian Communists rebuffed the Soviet overtures, fired a rocket through the second floor of their embassy, looted the building and ordered the Russians to the French compound. The Russians, having failed in their mission, looked gloomy. They did not appreciate any of the jokes about assignment to Siberia or the salt mines.

The Russians seemed to console themselves by carrying a veritable storehouse of food, including large stocks of tinned meat and vodka. They shared none of it with anyone either in the compound or on the trip to Thailand — which occasioned some arguments and also some further jokes about the bourgeoise and the revisionist influences that seemed to have crept into Soviet Communism. The Russians did not appreciate those either.

This phase came to an end for us early on April 30 when — after an evening of sipping champagne "borrowed" from embassy stocks and singing determinedly hardy traveling songs such as "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" — we were awakened as scheduled, after a few hours' sleep, and told to board the trucks.

He operates out of a crowded third floor office tucked away on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus.

He squeezes in time to see a student, worries about getting badly needed new office space and tries to divide his time between teaching, doing research, working with farmers and administering an office.

He's Dr. Michael G. Boosalis.

But unlike many other UNL faculty members who usually don't get in the limelight, Dr. Boosalis's time has come.

He's the City of Lincoln's first "First Gentlemen", as husband of the city's mayor-elect Helen Boosalis.

As the spouse of the mayor, Dr. Boosalis supposes he'll be called upon occasionally to do a certain amount of ceremonial ribbon cutting, traditionally the big job of mayor's wives.

But, he won't mind and even gives the impression he'll be looking forward to attending even more city-related functions with his wife. It's A Hobby

Although he's been getting some goodnatured ribbing from fellow colleagues about his new role as the "First Man," Dr. Boosalis is taking it all in stride. He's obviously proud of Helen's political career.

"Politics," he says of his wife, "has been a way of life for her since she was very young." Helen's favorite uncle, who was a well known Minneapolis politician, used to take Helen along to the legislature when she was "just a little girl."

Dr. Boosalis said, therefore, he wasn't the least bit surprised when his wife decided to run for City Council 16 years ago.

"I've always been 100% behind her," he says, noting that "politics is usually the main conversational topic at the dinner table.' While some people still think "women shouldn't be in leadership positions," Dr. Boosalis says, "times are changing.

Even though Helen has been involved in city government for 16 years, he says, "She's not neglected her home life." He quickly added he wasn't being "chauvinistic or anything."

It's just, he said, that she likes to sew, do woodworking "and make new things out of old Politics has been a part of the Boosalises's

Appropriation Requested

Since plant pathology departments usually maintain a low public profile, university officials have been trying to generate public attention to the needs of the department. They want the Legislature to appropriate the money this year to build a new plant science building to house plant pathology, agronomy and horticulture.

While a rusty window fan perches precariously atop a cabinet towering over his desk, Dr. Boosalis says it looks like the new building may have to wait another year.

Omaha (AP) - As hundreds of volunteer workers geared up for a massive weekend campaign to clean up debris from last Tuesday's twisters that hit the city, a young construction worker was killed in a cleanup accident just hours after he was hired on a temporary basis.

Officials identified the victim as Alan Kepler,

Kepler, who had been out of work before the storm, according to a union hall spokesman, was hired by the Charles Vrana and Sons Construction Co., Friday morning, and was assigned to a work crew cleaning up at a sheet metal fabricating plant in one of the areas hit worst by the killer

Massive Head Injuries

Authorities said Kepler fell from the building late Friday morning, and suffered massive head injuries. He died several hours later in a local hospital.

The tornadoes that swept through heavilypopulated residential and business districts in the city's southwest and westcentral sections late Tuesday afternoon killed three persons outright.

As the cleanup efforts progressed, an official of the American Insurance Association said he does not beheve the damage from twisters will be as high as earlier estimated by Gov. J. James Walter D. Swift, vice president of the association, estimated insured losses from the killer twisters at $67.3 million.

Swift said the insured figure in disasters, such as the one that hit Omaha and Ralston, normally runs a bit higher than half of the total

Swift said insured damage to dwelling units is estimated at $15.5 million, $46.8 million for commercial structures including nine apartment buildings, and $5 million for damage to some 2,-. 000 motor vehicles.

Volunteers for the weekend cleanup will be marshaled at two points, then will be taken by buses to the various damaged areas of the city. In all, officials have divided the revaged areas

2,500 Workers?

Some city officials say as many as 2,500 volunteer workers may show up for the effort. While Swift gave his estimate of damage, the city's Planning Department came up with an estimate of its own.

Planning Director Alden Aust said staff members came up with a damage estimate of $30,294,000 to privately owned real estate.

Aust said the estimate was based on the findings of walkthrough inspections and tax records. As the weekend approached, officials also became more apprehensive about sightseers that have been hindering the clean up operations and clogging roads in and around the disaster areas.

Tough Stand

Mayor Zorinsky has taken a tough stand against sightseers, saying unauthorized persons found in the fornado areas will be jailed as curfew violaters.

Federal Disaster Assistance Agency (FDAA) workers arrived in Omaha Thursday, and an FDAA spokesman said two, one-stop disaster assistance centers would begin operations Saturday, and would continue to operate on a daily basis until all victims are taken care of.

Meanwhile, the numerous funds, started to aid the tornado victims, continued to grow. At last report, more than $100,000 had been collected or pledged in Omaha and Lincoln.

Washington (AP) - Sen. Carl Tu. Curtis, R-Neb., said Friday he will donate his tax rebate check to victims of the recent tornadoes that hit Omaha.

Curtis' $42.500 Senate salary would make him eligible for a $100 tax rebate

The Treasury began sending out some $8 billion in tax rebates this week. The rebates generally will range between $100 and $200.

Carl T Curtis. Shasteen said the money will be used to provide emergency services to the elderly.

The Nebraska Commission On Aging submitted the request, saying 545 persons 60 years of devastated areas. The Nebraska Commission has already allocated $12,500 of its state and federal funds to get transportation and nutritional assistance programs going immediately.

Additional services, such as counseling and handyman assistance, will also be provided.

The federal grant will come from the Administration On Aging, which is division of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Committee members note that damage to crops and livestock is still going on, but it may not be directly related to the storm.

Late Fall Planting Some wheat was planted late last fall and didn't go through the normal wintering process of going dormant before resuming growth in the spring. Such wheat produces straw but seldom produces a head with grain in it.

Livestock losses due to weakened conditions, predator damage and disease undoubtedly increased due to the storm, but officials say it is impossible to arrive at an accurate estimate of those losses in terms of dollars.

The crop losses were due in part to the very dry conditions in the area last fall which delayed the emergence of winter wheat which would normally have provided good ground cover to hold the soil blown away by the wind accompanying the blizzard. Officials estimate that an ad-

Nebraska's 1975 wheat crop was forecast Friday at 91.5 million bushels, 7% less than lest year's and the smallest crop since 1969.

In its first wheat crop estimate of the year, the U.S. Department of Agriculture revealed Nebraska's wheat yield at 31 bushels per acre, three bushels below last year and the lowest bushel yield since 1967.

The latest figures were based on May 1 conditions.

"Much of the crop has been hurt by dry weather which delayed planting, reduced germination and limited growth last fall and this spring," according to Doug Murfield, state statistician of the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

Moisture supplies are still short in most areas and timely rains will be needed to make a good crop, Murfield added.

Local 647 of the International Association of Fire Fighters, is asking the court to include all members of the fire department, captain and below, as members of the union.

According to the union's petition, the city "failed and refused to make counterproposals during negotiations for a new contract.'

By DOMINICK COSTELLO Farm Editor

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Will Erwin, in Lincoln for graduation ceremonies of a group who will be working in rural development, said the federal government has no overall program for rural development. "We don't have a master plan.

need for," he said. Erwin admitted there was some red tape involved. "Any red tape at all is too much. There are a lot of forms to fill out, but the programs are there so it is worth the effort," he said. Erwin described rural development as "an extension of the traditional processes of selfgovernment.'

Erwin admitted that many people are opposed to seeing their rural area developed. "Ask them if they want to be able to keep their kids in the community, and their neighbors' kids. Then tell them that you need jobs to keep them in the community and that development will produce those jobs," he told the graduating class of rural development workers.

"We are a mobile society that has 50% of its people who want to move to rural areas, so it is going to happen whether we want it to or not. We should decide how we want it to develop and move now to give this development some direction," he said.

Erwin said it was essential to preserve the rural ethic as the development progress citing the problems of crime, decline in parental authority, respect for schools and churches as a city development.

Actor Dorn Dies Los Angeles (AP) - Actor

Philip Dorn, a handsome, deepvoiced leading man in films from 1939 to 1953, died at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital. He was 73.

"We have to reinforce rural value systems where the philosophy of government by conscience was formed. If we as a nation are not governed by conscience, we are doomed to be taken over by Communisium or some sort of government by police," he warned.

Erwin expressed the hope that Congress woulds soon pass a single emergency farm loan act that would put together the five acts that now operate a variety of confusing farm loan programs.

"We have had some improvement in the livestock emergency loan program already, and the other bill has had favorable hearings thus far," he said.

Erwin predicted that overworked Farmers Home Administration officials would soon be getting some extra manpower. "We have received some help from other agencies, but should soon be getting some extra manpower of our own because of the increasing workload," he said.

Erwin cited the town of Magent as an example of rural programs via the rural development program.

"We have just completed a sewer system there and now the town blew away in a storm. The Small Business Administration will be making loans there to help the town recover from the storm damage," he said.

"Rural development works, but the only way it works is when the local people make it work, not from what happens to it in Washington," he said.

Futility Of Taxes Vs. Education Felt

By DICK HOLMAN Star Staff Writer

Doing the splits on waivers requested to delay dissolving two school districts, the State Board of Education Friday felt the stretch of futility in the decades-old battle of taxation vs. equal educational opportunity.

"We've got to take some initiative," said board member Marilyn Fowler of Lexington. "We have to do something to wake up the Legislature and the governor that we have inequity" in Nebraska schools and taxation to support them.

Board Vice President Willard Waldo of DeWitt said Nebraskans "can't expect" the large family farm to survive if landowners are saddled with paying the bulk of school taxes.

But "the Legislature isn't going to solve the problem unless they get wide state support," Waldo said, evincing again the misunderstandings about just such a state school aid referendum measure voters rejected last November.

The discussion emanated from requests to waive dissolution of School District 74 in Hail County and District 73 in Johnson Coun-

Residents in District 74, adjacent east to the Grand Island district, will vote May 20 on a $942,-000 bond issue for a new school, requiring a 22-mill levy to serve about 100 children. Grand Island annexed the District 74 school two years ago, and the school board is split on building anew or having Grand Island schools educate the youngsters.

The state board voted down, 4-3, a motion by Lincoln member Frank Landis to grant a year extension on dissolving District made. 74, on grounds of hardship for local patrons. Landis appealed to allow local control, saying board rejection of the waiver could influence the bond issue election. The board then decided to

In a turnabout move, the board approved 5-2 Landis' motion to deny the District 73 request to stay its dissolution. It will thus be consolidated with Tecumseh District 32.

Landis said if the board would approve the District 73 hardship appeal - based solely on varying tax levies from district to district - it would be a "hallmark case." He said only district court may decide that, should the school district appeal the board's decision.

The board also approved 6-1 amended "standards of competent professional performance" governing teachers and administrators for use by the Nebraska Professional Practices Commission.

Landis cast the sole dissenting vote.

In other business, the board confirmed its earlier approval of official rules to operate special education programs under LB403; okayed LB403 forms for school district use, and set additional Education Service Unit rate charges.

Deputy Commissioner LeRoy Ortgiesen reported that of the 181 school districts which received $18,089 in LB555 emergency fund overpayments for LB403 programs, 75 have refunded the illegal checks, reducing the outstanding balance to $7,000.

Doing the splits on waivers requested to delay dissolving two school districts, the State Board of Education Friday felt the stretch of futility in the decades-old battle of taxation vs. equal educational opportunity.

"We've got to take some initiative," said board member Marilyn Fowler of Lexington. "We have to do something to wake up the Legislature and the governor that we have inequity" in Nebraska schools and taxation to support them.

Board Vice President Willard Waldo of DeWitt said Nebraskans "can't expect" the large family farm to survive if landowners are saddled with paying the bulk of school taxes.

But "the Legislature isn't going to solve the problem unless they get wide state support," Waldo said, evincing again the misunderstandings about just such a state school aid referendum measure voters rejected last November.

The discussion emanated from requests to waive dissolution of School District 74 in Hall County and District 73 in Johnson Coun-

Residents in District 74, adjacent east to the Grand Island district, will vote May 20 on a $942,-000 bond issue for a new school, requiring a 22-mill levy to serve about 100 children. Grand Island annexed the District 74 school two years ago, and the school board is split on building anew or having Grand Island schools educate the youngsters.

The state board voted down, 4-3, a motion by Lincoln member Frank Landis to grant a year extension on dissolving District made. 74, on grounds of hardship for local patrons. Landis appealed to allow local control, saying board rejection of the waiver could influence the bond issue election. The board then decided to

Blanket Cuts In Budget Rejected By Senators

By DON WALTON Star Staff Writer

Proposals to institute arbitrary across-theboard reductions in the recommended budgets for most state agencies were rejected by the Legislature Friday

Sen Douglas Bereuter of Utica, a member of the Appropriations Committee, proposed a 3% cut in most operational budgets

Sen Orval Keys of Springfield asked lawmakers to slice a 10% swatch out of most agency appropriations

It was the Bereuter motion which attracted the most votes and the most debate. Needing 25 votes, his motion fell on an 18-16 count Administrative Cost Cut

Bereuter argued that a 3% reduction in the proposed general fund appropriations for most state agencies would cut administrative costs without harming the quality of state services

The spending cut would total about $91 million, he said

The Appropriations Committee did not have the time to take "a realistic look at continuation budgets" this year he said. Those are the funding requirements to maintain state services at their current level

Within those budgets, Bereuter said, are accumulated bureaucratic inefficiencies which could be wiped out with a 3% cut in recommended new appropriations without distrubing funding for new or improved programs approved by the committee

Gov J James Exon would 'feel less free' to apply item veto reductions to new programs if the Legislature forced state agencies to "remove the pad 'from the funding required to continue present services, he said

Senators Distrubed

A number of senators were particularly disturbed by the motion's effect on state aid programs which, Bereuter acknowledged, would be reduced by 3%

The cut in state aid to schools would represent $1.6 million, Sen Frank Lewis of Bellevue

The loss of total state and for local government could reach $2 million or $3 million, he said

Bereuter's suggestion, Lewis said, represents "the most sophisticated shell game I've ever

Sen George Syas of Omaha said the proposal from an Appropirations Committee member made him wonder whether the committee had properly done its job

If the disputed 3% is not necessary, Svas asked, "why did he vote for the appropriations in the first place?"

Bereuter's proposal is "unsound," Syas said, although "people will think you re doing them a

'Fat In Them'

It sounds like at least one member of the committee believes it "brought budget bills to the floor with fat in them," Sen Wally Barnett of Lin-

If there are to be budget reductions, a number of senators suggested, they should be directed at specific agencies which might be overfunded, rather than imposed on all agencies in a blanket motion

Bereuter would have exempted from reduction six programs, including the nonadministrative budgets of the Department of Public Institutions and the Department of Correctional Services

Keyes twice attempted to impose a 10% general fund cut on most agencies, an effort which could have decreased the budget by more than $30 million

Both Bids Fail

His first bid fell on a 10-18 count the second one flopped on a 7-16 score

Added to one of the budget bills at second stage floor consideration was an additional $1.7 million for special education programs administered by the Department of Education

That proposal, in effect restroed the 1974 75 funding level approved by the 1974 Unicameral but subsequently reduced by a gubernatorial

Star Staff Writer Proposals to institute arbitrary across-theboard reductions in the recommended budgets for most state agencies were rejected by the Legislature Friday

Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Utica, a member of the Appropriations Committee, proposed a 3% cut in most operational budgets.

Sen. Orval Keys of Springfield asked lawmakers to slice a 10% swatch out of most agency appropriations.

It was the Bereuter motion which attracted the most votes and the most debate. Needing 25 votes, his motion fell on an 18-16 count.

Administrative Cost Cut Bereuter argued that a 3% reduction in the proposed general fund appropriations for most state agencies would cut administrative costs without harming the quality of state services. The spending cut would total about $9.1

million, he said. The Appropriations Committee did not have the time to take "a realistic look at continuation budgets" this year, he said. Those are the funding requirements to maintain state services at their current level. Within those budgets, Bereuter said, are accumulated bureaucratic inefficiencies which could be wiped out with a 3% cut in recommended new appropriations without distrubing funding for new or improved programs approved by the committee. Gov. J. James Exon would "feel less free" to apply item veto reductions to new programs if the Legislature forced state agencies to "remove the pad" from the funding required to continue present services, he said.

Senators Distrubed

A number of senators were particularly disturbed by the motion's effect on state aid programs which, Bereuter acknowledged, would be reduced by 3%

The cut in state aid to schools would represent $1.6 million, Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue

The loss of total state aid for local government could reach $2 million or $3 million, he said.

'Fat In Them'

It sounds like at least one member of the committee believes it "brought budget bills to the floor with fat in them," Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln said.

If there are to be budget reductions, a number of senators suggested, they should be directed at specific agencies which might be overfunded, rather than imposed on all agencies in a blanket motion.

Bereuter would have exempted from reduction six programs, including the nonadministrative budgets of the Department of Public Institutions and the Department of Correctional Services. Keyes twice attempted to impose a 10% general fund cut on most agencies, an effort which could have decreased the budget by more than $30 million.

Both Bids Fail His first bid fell on a 10-18 count; the second one flopped on a 7-16 score. Added to one of the budget bills at second stage floor consideration was an additional $1.7 million for special education programs administered by the Department of Education. That proposal, in effect, restroed the 1974-75 funding level approved by the 1974 Unicameral, but subsequently reduced by a gubernatorial

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market forged a broadbased rally Friday, with spirits lifted by news of a massive inventory reduction in March.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 9.63 to 850.13, climbing steadily throughout the session.

The main source of encouragement appeared to be a government report as the market opened that business inventories fell a record $1.92 billion in March. On the surface, the figure showed that business activity had slowed markedly from previous months. But Wall Street chose the

The large number of giant block trades and the strong gains in the glamor sextion indicated strong institutional backing in the day's advance.

On the flip side, low-priced stocks that had been neglected in the current four-month rally were prominent on the active list for the second straight session.

Barrows and gilts turned from $1.75-$2.25 higher, but most sales were $2.00 to the upside. Sows were generally $1.50-$2.25 higher. Steers and heifers were $2.50-

$3.50 higher than the quotes during the middle of last week. and cows were $1.00 higher than last week's close. There were not enough slaughter lambs on offer this week to make a comparison,

2nd Psalm and Acts 4:25

John Baptist were "MAN SHALL NOT LIVE BY BREAD ALONE BUT BY EVERY WORD THAT PROCEEDETH OUT OF THE MOUTH OF GOD " Matt and Luke 4 4 In the Gospel of John 10 35 He said "THE SCRIPTURE CANNOT BE BROKEN!" And in another place, or two, He said 'Heavens and Earth shall pass away, but My Word will not pass away

People "YE ARE MY WITNESSES" - one place is Isaiah 43 10 A number of times Christ said to His Disciples "YE ARE MY WITNESSES'" — ONE PLACE IS Luke 24 48 just as He was about to ascend back to Heaven

In 2nd Chronicles 16 9 The Spirit of God says 'FOR THE EYES OF GOD RUN TO AND FRO THROUGHOUT THE WHOLE EARTH TO SHOW HIMSELF STRONG IN THE BEHALF OF THEM WHOSE HEART IS PERFECT TOWARDS HIM!" Desiring to be a faithful and true witness, bearing one pleasing to the eyes of God Almighty, and having for many years considered "EVERY WORD THAT HAS PROCEEDED OUT OF THE MOUTH OF GOD" as recorded in the King James Version of Holy Scriptures, the writer wishes to present the following WITNESS AND TESTIMONY

demning this Jesus declared, I came not to destroy the law, but to fulfill it' He fulfilled this by urging us by teachings and examples to be respectful, friendly and helpful to all men This is love to our fellow man in proper form - in its proper form -Christ's ideal in race relations recognizes the obvious fact of racial differences in the human family and encourages each to develop their own way, retaining their individuality and culture, while encouraging and working for the good of all races A great Negro, Booker T Washington, very wisely put it this way "We can be as separate as the fingers on the hand, and like the fingers cooperate

We are physical mortals here and now on earth with differences as to race and sex, "AND THE LAW OF GOD REGARDING SEPARATION IN OUR RACIAL RELATIONS

Machinists Delegates Plan Vote On Health Care Plan Resolution

Delegates representing 300.000 deregulation of the price of machinists were slated to vote Saturday in Lincoln on resolutions ranging from support for a federal comprehensive health care plan to opposition to a coal slurry pipeline. About 250 to 300 delegates from nine states have been in Lincoln since Wednesday for the Midwest States Conference of Machinists.

The resolution supporting federal health care states that people who are laid off had better not get sick, because most of them have lost the protection of the employe health and welfare plans. This makes every sickness a major catastrophe.'

The proposal to bring pulverized coal mixed with water down pipelines from Wyoming would not only cause ecological problems, it would cause "unbelievable rail abandonments," states the resolution opposing the pipeline.

Another resolution being considered opposes the proposed natural gas at the wellhead. The resolution claims that deregulation would cost consumers between $9.2 billion and $11.2 billion in the first year.

Another resolution supports sation for railroad workers. When laid off they get $12.50, on which "no family can begin to exist." the resolution states, and Congress should raise the amount to $33

Jesus, our Saviour, affirmed God's Law regarding racial separation. There was a form of racial separation and segregation - segregation between Jews and Samaritans - when He was on earth in the flesh. Certainly there is no record of His con-

This is love to our fellow man in proper form — in its proper form — Christ's ideal in race relations recognizes the obvious fact of racial differences in the human family and encourages each to develop their own way, retaining their individuality and culture, while encouraging and working for the good of all races. # Saban Hoping NU's Ruud, Nelson Can Help Bills-

By BOB OWENS Star Sports Editor

Omaha - Lou Saban, head coach of the Buffalo Bills, didn't waste any time during his visit here to speak at the annual Nebraska Football Hall of Fame dinner Friday night.

He arrived Thursday night and held a press conference at the Omaha Press Club. Then, Friday morning, he rented a car to drive to Lincoln to visit two persons he hopes can help lift his NFL team in the standings this season.

The objects of his attention were linebackers Tom Ruud and Bob Nelson who starred for three years at Nebraska and who were top draft choices of the Bills.

'The primary help for the Bills next season will have to come from the draft," Saban said. That makes Ruud and Nelson vital parts if the Bills are to be the real "contender" Saban

Saban noted that Buffalo hasn't had much luck in making-trades to strengthen the team and that some of his current players have reached their maximum potential.

That means rookies could play a big role in the upcoming season. The Bills have had 9-5 records in each of the last two seasons and the hope is that they can improve measurably and be a Super Bowl contender.

'We think Ruud and Nelson can help us immensly," Saban said. "Whether they can be ready to step in after six pre-season games is something we've got to find out. They hae exceptional speed and we're looking for outside linebackers. We drafted four linebackers which gives you some idea where we need

Saban was a linebacker himself both at Indiana, where he played his college football and with the Cleveland Browns. So he knows what is required in the way of physical size and auickness

The 53-year-old Saban has had an up-and-down coaching career. At 33, he became the youngest coach in the Big Ten at Northwestern which promptly went winless and which promptly fired him.

Later, he had success at Western Illinois where he was coach-of-the-year in the NAIA.

He then held two pro jobs, one at Boston (Patriots) where he was fired and another at Buffalo where he won a pair of American Football League crowns. After a short stay back at college ball at Maryland, he coached five years at Denver and then went to his current job.

Inductees into the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame Friday night were three former Cornhusker stars and one from Creighton University.

They included:

Johnny Bender, NU's first great breakaway runner at the turn of the century. He scored a school record 18 touchdowns and a field goal in 1904. That would be 111 points by today's scoring rules.

Vern Lewellen, NU halfback-quarterback in 1921-22-23, who led the Huskers to three Missouri Valley titles and twice helped upset Notre Dame when he played. He's called "perhaps" Nebraska's greatest punter.

Warren Alfson, guard for NU in 1938-39-40, was twice allconference and once all-American despite only weighing 188

Johnny Knolla, Creighton halfback in the same period, was the nation's total offense champion in 1940 with 1,420 yards in 10

Others honored included Cy Sherman, former Lincoln Star sports editor and Gregg McBride and Fred Ware, formerly of the Omaha World-Herald. The Clarence E. Swanson Memorial Award went to the Nebraska Beef Club which furnishes beef for the Cornhusker training table. It was accepted by Herman Dinklage of Beemer, one of the founders of the organization.

THE LINCOLN STAR-

UNO Tops

By KEN HAMBLETON Star Sports Writer

After 26 years as the University of Nebraska-Omaha baseball coach, Virgil Yelkin finally got the game ball.

Yelkin's Mavericks shaded the Huskers 3-1 in their final home game of the season Friday at the NU Diamond to give the veteran coach his 400th career coaching win against 181 losses.

UNO's Angelo Intile scattered five Husker hits in going the full nine innings for the win, as the Mavericks took a 2-1 advantage in the scheduled five game series with the Huskers. The two teams will meet again at Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha at 6 p.m. for a doubleheader Saturday.

UNL's Steve Nagel, Dave Buehrer and Boyd Batenhorst combined to shackle the Mavericks with only four hits. Nagel, who took his first loss of the season, pitched six innings, permitting three hits while striking out seven and walking only three. He faced the minimum 12 batters in the first four innings before allowing the second and third UNO hits.

Bryant Akisada, NU's leading hitter with a .362 batting average, scored the only Husker run on a single by Paul Haas in the second inning. Akısada, who went 2 for 3 at the plate, reached first on a single and advanced to third on two UNO errors.

The Mavericks tied the game in the fifth when Al Wees, who at Lochland Country Club. singled and went to second on a sacrifice bunt by Rich Bernstein, matches, 401/2-341/2, to give them scored on a double by Curt and the pros two wins each.

batter Jeff Bieterman reached first on an error followed by tion in the afternoon's individual Gary Haney, who walked. Then matches. Dana Albrecht bunted Bieterman and Haney to scoring position. The next batter Bruce Benedict drew an intentional walk, filling the bases, and Wees grounded to second scoring two ties. Bieterman. Haney then scored the final run on a wild pitch by

The Huskers posed a threat in the bottom of the ninth as pinchhitter Doug Miller led off with a single followed by Dick Anderson who walked. Gary Healey then laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt putting the runners in scoring position.

But the next batter Norm Glismann grounded to the pitcher and Doak Fowler, popped out to the third baseman to end the inning after the count filled on a disputed foul ball, which apparently hit his arm and not the bat.

UNO boosted its season record to 23-11 while dropping the Huskers to 13-16 overall.

After Saturday's twin bill the Huskers will close out the season with a three game series at Oklahoma next Tuesday and Wednesday.

NU, 7-5 in the Big Eight, could capture the league championship with a three game sweep over the Sooners, who are 12-3 in conference play.

Washington Sets 'Unexpected' Shot Put Mark here to go for a mark on his first it to come today. Both of my two varsity meets as a By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Editor

Papillion — Just when no one was expecting it, Mike Washington exploded here Friday night, heaving the shot put 60-2 for the best mark in Nebraska prep track history.

Washington admitted he wasn't anticipating such an historic effort. Bill Story, his Lincoln High weight coach, didn't expect it, either, not this week anyway. "We really weren't pointing toward this meet," Story said of the first Eastern I-80 Conference championships in which Lincoln Northeast scored a convincing "In fact," Story pointed out,

"I had Mike lifting weights

Wednesday after our meet with

Millard. I told him on the bus up throw and to go all out on his second.'

Washington listens well. He achieved 57-2 on his first put, then boomed the 60-2, which bettered the previous state best of 60-1 by Scottsbluff's Steve Yungblut 10 years ago.

On his final four throws, the muscular 5-11½, 225-pound Washington achieved 56-101/2, 59-0, 51-6 and 55-41/2.

Story showed the most emotion after the superlative effort. He threw his baseball cap to the ground and said to himself thank God after 20 years of coaching (and five state champion shot putters) - a 80footer.

Washington said: "I went blank for a minute. I didn't know how to react. I wasn't expecting hamstrings have tightened during the week I was expecting a 57 or 58 today.'

"Immediately, I started psyching myself up again," related Washington, who will attend Nebraska this fall on a full football scholarship. "Getting 60 puts a lot of drive in me," he added. "I want to keep working as hard as I can and lifting as hard as I can. I'm hoping this excites me to keep going as far as I can." Washington admitted he experienced feelings of worry. "It scares me," he said, "but then again, if I can get this when I'm relaxed and not expecting it, I should be able to do better.' Lincoln High head coach Harold Scott remembered that

Washington competed in only sophomore. "His best wasn't even 47 feet,"

Scott recalled. "He's worked so hard to get to this point. He's come about a lot of it naturally with his great strength, but he's built that strength on his own. It doesn't just happen. "I don't care how big and strong you are," added Scott, "you've still got to put it all together. I wish everyone was like him because he works so hard. "Mike can be thankful for Bill Story because he lives Mike Washington, John Beaver and all the other weightmen 24 hours a day," Scott pointed out. "I turn everything over to him because I know the kids will be getting the very best."

Mike Washington

perfectionist, classified Washington's 60-2 effort "a perfect put technique-wise. He had terrific height on it. I was watching his feet. His foot came right up. His chest was up and Story, a self-proclaimed over the toe board just like it exploded ' According to Story, Lincoln High shot putters are taught "to still use the Randy Matson form more up and over. It's not like Al Feurbach, who stays lower and comes off to the side. "We've got films from last year's state meet, showing Mike how important his front foot is," noted Story "It gives him an important mental picture. He comes into my room almost every hour and watches the film. "He told me I should make it a prerequisite to watch that film every day," Story said. "I know when Mike lettered as a sophomore in the discus, he had no visions of becoming this good a shot putter. "But," added Story, "I knew he would the next year, watching him twist and lift his feet, seeing his back leg and hip get into it. It takes a super athlete to throw

Bold Trap Top-Weighted In Ambassador's

By MARK GORDON Star Sports Writer

Omaha - There are almost as many questions surrounding Saturday's Ambassador's Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben as there are entrants. For instance:

-- Is Bold Trap as good as his Nebraska record indicates? - Is the Jack Van Berg-trained Pocket Clipper able to better his disappointing seventh in

 Can Miss Mundo regain the front-running drive that sparked her to three wins at Grand Island's Fonner Park?

- Will an extra 110 vards aid Red Drifter? Achieve the answers to those questions and you'll have the winner of the $25,000-added Ambassador's Handicap which attracted 12 3-yearolds for the 6-furlong jaunt.

R. Boushka and H.A. Mayor's Bold Trap has been most impressive during his three-race Nebraska stay this season. That primarily accounts for the Bold Commander colt receiving top-weight of 120 pounds from racing secretary

Bold Trap, who won this spring at Oaklawn Park, captured two Fonner Park tests, including the first division of the $14,050 Nebraska Derby over one mile on April 19.

He scored a wire-to-wire verdict at Ak-Sar-Ben on May 2 in an allowance test over a mile and 70 yards. His 1975 record sports four wins and one second in eight outings for earnings of $21,577 to his Omaha owners.

The Kentucky Derby-nominee must concede from 2 to nine pounds to his 11 foes. Second top-weighted at 118 pounds will be the Kemling Brothers' Roman Zipper and Jack Gardes' Pappa Hans. Roman Zipper, who won the second division of the Fonner Park Special Stakes over 6 furlongs on April 11, finished third in $10,000 Inaugural Purse at Ak-Sar-Ben on April 29.

Pappa Hans won the Inaugural Purse over 51/2-furlongs by a nose over E.C. Cashman's Red Drifter, who will also compete in the Ambassador's. The race will be 110 yards longer than the Inaugural, which may aid the fast-closing Red Drifter, who will carry 115 pounds.

Calvin Klein's Pocket Clipper finished seventh in the Inaugural, beaten about four lengths by Pappa Hans, but should improve off that race. It was Pocket Clipper's first outing this year after winning all four 1974 tests for winnings of $71,723 for his Spring, Tex., owner. He will carry 116 pounds.

H.E. Clay and S.H. Struck's Miss Mundo, who won three tests in wire-to-wire fashion at Fonner Park, is hoping to amend for an thirdplace effort here in a 51/2-furlong allowance test

That was the speedy filly's first Nebraska defeat. She led until the end of a long stretch run.

Saban Hoping NU's Ruud, Nelson Can Help Bills-

By BOB OWENS Star Sports Editor

Omaha - Lou Saban, head coach of the Buffalo Bills, didn't waste any time during his visit here to speak at the annual Nebraska Football Hall of Fame dinner Friday night.

He arrived Thursday night and held a press conference at the Omaha Press Club. Then, Friday morning, he rented a car to drive to Lincoln to visit two persons he hopes can help lift his NFL team in the standings this season.

The objects of his attention were linebackers Tom Ruud and Bob Nelson who starred for three years at Nebraska and who were top draft choices of the Bills

"The primary help for the Bills next season will have to come from the draft," Saban said. That makes Ruud and Nelson vital parts if the Bills are to be the real "contender" Saban believes they will be.

Saban noted that Buffalo hasn't had much luck in making trades to strengthen the team and that some of his current players have reached their maximum potential.

That means rookies could play a big role in the upcoming season. The Bills have had 9-5 records in each of the last two seasons and the hope is that they can improve measurably and be a Super Bowl contender.

'We think Ruud and Nelson can help us immensly," Saban said. "Whether they can be ready to step in after six pre-season games is something we've got to find out. They hae exceptional speed and we're looking for outside linebackers. We drafted four linebackers which gives you some idea where we need

Saban was a linebacker himself both at Indiana, where he played his college football and with the Cleveland Browns. So he knows what is required in the way of physical size and

The 53-year-old Saban has had an up-and-down coaching career. At 33, he became the youngest coach in the Big Ten at Northwestern which promptly went winless and which promptly

Later, he had success at Western Illinois where he was coach-of-the-year in the NAIA.

He then held two pro jobs, one at Boston (Patriots) where he was fired and another at Buffalo where he won a pair of American Football League crowns. After a short stay back at college ball at Maryland, he coached five years at Denver and then went to his current job.

Inductees into the Nebraska Football Hall of Fame Friday night were three former Cornhusker stars and one from Creighton University.

They included:

Johnny Bender, NU's first great breakaway runner at the turn of the century. He scored a school record 18 touchdowns and a field goal in 1904. That would be 111 points by today's scoring rules.

Vern Lewellen, NU halfback-quarterback in 1921-22-23, who led the Huskers to three Missouri Valley titles and twice helped upset Nôtre Dame when he played. He's called "perhaps" Nebraska's greatest punter.

Warren Alfson, guard for NU in 1938-39-40, was twice allconference and once all-American despite only weighing 188

Johnny Knolla, Creighton halfback in the same period, was the nation's total offense champion in 1940 with 1,420 yards in 10

Others honored included Cy Sherman, former Lincoln Star sports editor and Gregg McBride and Fred Ware, formerly of the Omaha World-Herald.

The Clarence E. Swanson Memorial Award went to the Nebraska Beef Club which furnishes beef for the Cornhusker training table. It was accepted by Herman Dinklage of Beemer, one of the founders of the organization.

UNO Tops

By KEN HAMBLETON

Star Sports Writer After 26 years as the University of Nebraska-Omaha baseball coach, Virgil Yelkin finally got the game ball.

Yelkin's Mavericks shaded the Huskers 3-1 in their final home game of the season Friday at the NU Diamond to give the veteran coach his 400th career coaching win against 181 losses.

UNO's Angelo Intile scattered five Husker hits in going the full nine innings for the win, as the Mavericks took a 2-1 advantage in the scheduled five game series with the Huskers. The two teams will meet again at Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha at 6 p.m. for a doubleheader Saturday.

UNL's Steve Nagel, Dave Buehrer and Boyd Batenhorst combined to shackle the Mavericks with only four hits. Nagel, who took his first loss of the season, pitched six innings, permitting three hits while striking out seven and walking only three. He faced the minimum 12 batters in the first four innings before allowing the second and third UNO hits.

Bryant Akisada, NU's leading hitter with a .362 batting average, scored the only Husker run on a single by Paul Haas in the second inning. Akisada, who went 2 for 3 at the plate, reached first on a single and advanced to third on two UNO errors.

The next batter Bruce Benedict drew an intentional walk, filling the bases, and Wees grounded to second scoring Bieterman. Haney then scored the final run on a wild pitch by runners in scoring position. But the next batter Norm Glismann grounded to the pitcher and Doak Fowler, popped out to the third baseman to end the inning after the count filled on a disputed foul ball, which apparently hit his arm and not the bat.

The Huskers posed a threat in the bottom of the ninth as pinchhitter Doug Miller led off with a single followed by Dick Anderson who walked. Gary Healey then laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt putting the

UNO boosted its season record to 23-11 while dropping the Huskers to 13-16 overall.

After Saturday's twin bill the Huskers will close out the season with a three game series at Oklahoma next Tuesday and

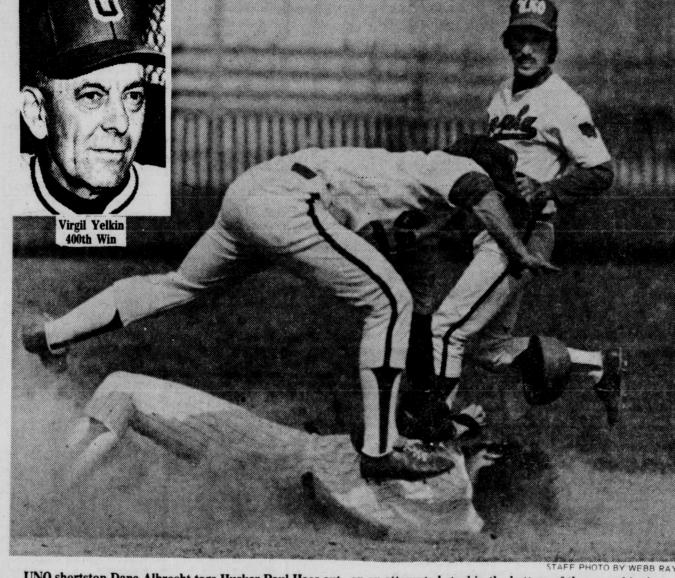

NU, 7-5 in the Big Eight, could capture the league championship with a three game sweep over the Sooners, who are

Washington Sets 'Unexpected' Shot Put Mark here to go for a mark on his first it to come today. Both of my two varsity meets as a By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Editor Papillion — Just when no one was expecting it, Mike Washington exploded here Friday night, heaving the shot put 60-2 for the best mark in Nebraska prep track history. Washington admitted he wasn't anticipating such an historic effort. Bill Story, his Lincoln High weight coach, didn't expect it, either, not this week anyway. "We really weren't pointing toward this meet," Story said of the first Eastern I-80 Conference championships in which Lincoln

Northeast scored a convincing

"In fact," Story pointed out, "I had Mike lifting weights Wednesday after our meet with Millard. I told him on the bus up throw and to go all out on his second. Washington listens well. He achieved 57-2 on his first put, then boomed the 60-2, which bettered the previous state best of 60-1 by Scottsbluff's Steve Yungblut 10 years ago. On his final four throws, the muscular 5-111/2, 225-pound Washington achieved 56-101/2, 59-0, 51-6 and 55-41/2. Story showed the most emotion after the superlative effort. He threw his baseball cap to the ground and said to himself 'thank God after 20 years of coaching (and five state champion shot putters) - a 60footer.

Washington said: "I went blank for a minute. I didn't know how to react. I wasn't expecting hamstrings have tightened during the week. I was expecting a 57 or 58 today. "Immediately, I started psy-ching myself up again," related Washington, who will attend Nebraska this fall on a full football scholarship. "Getting 60 puts a lot of drive in me," he added. "I want to keep working as hard as I can and lifting as hard as I can. I'm hoping this excites me to keep going as far as I can." Washington admitted he experienced feelings of worry. "It scares me," he said, "but

Scott recalled. "He's worked so hard to get to this point. He's come about a lot of it naturally with his great strength, but he's built that strength on his own. It doesn't just happen. "I don't care how big and

year's state meet, showing Mike how important his front foot is,' noted Story. "It gives him an important mental picture. He comes into my room almost every hour and watches the film. "He told me I should make it a prerequisite to watch that film every day," Story said. "I know when Mike lettered as a sophomore in the discus, he had no visions of becoming this good a shot putter. "But," added Story, "I knew

he would the next year, watching him twist and lift his feet, seeing his back leg and hip get into it. It takes a super athlete to throw

Bold Trap Top-Weighted In Ambassador's 'Cap

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer Omaha - There are almost as many questions surrounding Saturday's Ambassador's Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben as there are entrants.

Is Bold Trap as good as his Nebraska - Is the Jack Van Berg-trained Pocket

Clipper able to better his disappointing seventh in - Can Miss Mundo regain the front-running drive that sparked her to three wins at Grand Island's Fonner Park? — Will an extra 110 yards aid Red Drifter? Achieve the answers to those questions and you'll have the winner of the $25,000-added Ambassador's Handicap which attracted 12 3-yearolds for the 6-furlong jaunt.

R. Boushka and H.A. Mayor's Bold Trap has been most impressive during his three-race Nebraska stay this season. That primarily accounts for the Bold Commander colt receiving top-weight of 120 pounds from racing secretary John Maluvius.

Bold Trap, who won this spring at Oaklawn Park, captured two Fonner Park tests, including the first division of the $14,050 Nebraska Derby over one mile on April 19.

He scored a wire-to-wire verdict at Ak-Sar-Ben on May 2 in an allowance test over a mile and 70 yards. His 1975 record sports four wins and one second in eight outings for earnings of $21,577 to his Omaha owners.

The Kentucky Derby-nominee must concede from 2 to nine pounds to his 11 foes. Second top-weighted at 118 pounds will be the Kemling Brothers' Roman Zipper and Jack Gardes' Pappa Hans.

Roman Zipper, who won the second division of the Fonner Park Special Stakes over 6 furlongs on April 11, finished third in $10,000 Inaugural Purse at Ak-Sar-Ben on April 29.

Pappa Hans won the Inaugural Purse over 51/2-furlongs by a nose over E.C. Cashman's Red Drifter, who will also compete in the Ambassador's. The race will be 110 yards longer than the Inaugural, which may aid the fast-closing Red Drifter, who will carry 115 pounds.

Calvin Klein's Pocket Clipper finished seventh in the Inaugural, beaten about four lengths by Pappa Hans, but should improve off that race. It was Pocket Clipper's first outing this year after winning all four 1974 tests for winnings of $71,723 for his Spring, Tex., owner. He will carry 116 pounds.

H.E. Clay and S.H. Struck's Miss Mundo, who won three tests in wire-to-wire fashion at Fonner Park, is hoping to amend for an thirdplace effort here in a 51/2-furlong allowance test

That was the speedy filly's first Nebraska defeat. She led until the end of a long stretch run.

There will be two entries in the Ambassador's. W.E. Trotter II's Flawless Finish, who will carry 115 pounds, will join Pocket Clipper as an entry. The other entry will consist of George W. Loughlin's Rudarco, 117 pounds and Lyman Rollins' Ultra Energy, 116 pounds.

Other entrants and their weights include Mrs. H.J. Udouji's Me N'Mine, 117; A.H. Stall's Royal Legacy, 111 and W.H. Wardlaw and Ben Hopson's Bye Bye Battle, 114 pounds.

Seward - For the past two years, Northeast's Debbie Raddatz has celebrated her birthday the week of the girls state track meet in North Platte.

And both years, she's come away with a medal, third in Class A as a sophomore and second last year as a junior. But the talented Rocket senior makes no bones about what it is she really wants to celebrate her

18th birthday with - an overall gold medal. That's all she's wanted for the past two years, but her performance in Friday's A-1 district girls track meet here makes her dream come closer and closer to Raddatz uncorked a toss of 44-2¾ to set a new district record and place her just one inch behind the state's all-time leading shot putter, Jill Stenwall a Winside senior.

Raddatz' winning put Friday eclipsed her best this season by better than two feet and set the stage for another confrontation with Stenwall for the state overall gold.

Last year, Raddatz went into the state meet ranked behind Stenwall in the shot, but defeated her in the all-class standings handily.

With Raddatz' shot put, Jean Essman's winning 16-1114 long jump, Peggy Liddick's :11.1 80 hurdles win and Janet Bates' :26.4, 220 triumph, the Rockets waltzed away with the team championship scoring 77 points compared with the second place tie of Pius X and Norfolk at 52.

Raddatz, who has peaked each year in state meet competition, hopes the same will hold true for this season. "I just hope I didn't peak too early," she said. "Last year, I threw about a foot further in state than I did in districts.'

Lincoln is so popular with Kawasaki Motors Corp. officials that any future expansion of production facilities in the United States will be in Lincoln.

Lincoln is an "ideal location," according to the chairman of the board and president of Kawasaki Heavy Industries, Ltd., Kiyoshi Yotsumoto of Tokyo.

Yotsumoto, in Lincoln Friday for dedication ceremonies at the Lincoln manufacturing plant, said he was impressed with the "people working so hard" at the Yotsumoto and Vaji (George) Hamawaki, president of Kawasaki Motors Corp., indicated that any further expansion in this country would be at the Lincoln plant - Kawasaki's first manufacturing plant in the United States.

Current plans don't call for building other plants in this country, but Yotsumoto indicated that if sales go as expected, the Lincoln plant may be expanded in about two years.

The 270,000-square-foot Lincoln facility is capable of producing more than 120,000 motorcycles annually and employs 335 workers. Stressing that Kawasaki is an American company even though it is foreign owned, Yotsumoto views the motorcycle as the third official family vehicle for Americans.

"We believe it is going to be very successful," he said, noting that the new trend in motorcycles is for use as commuter also include women. Because the women's liberation movement is not so prevalent in Japan, Yotsumoto said there aren't as many women riding motorcycles there as there are in the United States.

Not So Liberal "We're not so liberal there," he laughed.

The motorcycle produced in Lincoln was expressly designed for commuting and for the United States, Yotsumoto said, adding that Kawasaki felt it could best serve the needs of the American people by actually manufacturing the motorcycle in this country.

The "American commuter" cycle was designed to be more quiet and with better gas mileage than those produced for use in Japan and in other parts of the world.

"The Lincoln plant was a result of the rapid sales growth of Kawasaki and a logical extension fo the Kawasaki corporate philosophy," Hamawaki said.

The first motorcycles sold in this country nine years ago were designed exclusively for the American market, and since then, all marketing, research and development activities of Kawasaki have originated in the United States, Hamawaki said.

"It is a logical extension of this philosophy for Kawasaki products to be manufactured by Americans in America," he said.

Kawasaki officials said the company is buying more and more of the component parts of its American motorcycles in the United States.

Cuts Time Loss

This will also cut down on time for ordering parts for motorcycle repairs, they said

Yotsumoto feels that the helmet law requiring motorcycle riders to wear helmets is an "excellent rule.

look on.

Local politicians and their staffs are officially in the dark and will be for several months.

Many lights at the County-City Building were turned off Friday morning and visitors and employes wandered down darkened halls.

The reason for the lights-off policy is not financial savings but overloading of the building's transformers

The transformers, which have inadequate ventilation, cannot currently handle both the air conditioning and hot water needs of the County-

No More Steam

In past years the K Street power plant has provided steam heat for the building's hot water boilers But this year the Lincoln Electric System (LES) notified county officials that they will not provide steam this summer, according to County Commissioner Robert Colin. The $4,000 monthly cost to furnish steam to the building was too high, Colin said he was told Without the K Street plant help, the building will have to choose between hot water and air

"I guess when that time comes we'll just have to flip a coin," Colin joked. Months To Go

Correcting the ventilation problem and installing a throw-over switch, which will assure a continuous supply of power to the building should LES have a power failure, will take at least three months, Colin estimates. In anticipation of problems, Building

Superintendent Henry Lorenz has asked each department to use as few lights as possible and most of the hallway lights have been turned off. One perplexed citizen, stepping out of an elevator this morning, said, "The lights on this floor are off too Do you think anyone is working The jail and the cafeteria, both located on the city's half of the building, will need hot water during the summer months

No Hot Water

Colin anticipates that the boiler for the county side of the building will be turned off during the hot, air conditioning season, while the cityside boiler will remain operating.

"If we want to wash our hands we'll have to go the the city side," said Colin

The energy problem in the building has been increasing as more offices and more equipment were moved into the building.

The former County-City Building Committee had studied the problem for several years and at one point paid for a study to find solutions for the electricity overload problem.

"We just never got anything done," Colin ad-

Already At Work A new Building Commission, a semi-autonomous group with some lay representation, has already begun to take action on the electrical problem and other unsolved building maintenance problems.

The transformer situation is not the only long-term problem at the building, Colin said. For example, motors installed to produce electricity during periods of power failure can only operate for 30 minutes at a time, he said. The exhaust pipes from the motors were never properly insulated, and the hot exhaust pipes run next to water pipes leading to the engine radiator. The water, which is to cool the engines, becomes hot and the engines overheat, Colin explained.

Lincoln is so popular with Kawasaki Motors Corp. officials that any future expansion of production facilities in the United States will be in Lincoln.

Lincoln is an "ideal location," according to the chairman of the board and president of Kawasaki Heavy Industries, Ltd., Kiyoshi Yotsumoto of Tokyo.

dicated that if sales go as expected, the Lincoln plant may be expanded in about two years. The 270,000-square-foot Lincoln facility is capable of producing more than 120,000

And the American customers also include women.

Because the women's liberation movement is not so prevalent in Japan, Yotsumoto said there aren't as many women riding motorcycles there as there are in the United States.

Not So Liberal "We're not so liberal there," he laughed.

The motorcycle produced in Lincoln was expressly designed for commuting and for the United States, Yotsumoto said. adding that Kawasaki felt it could best serve the needs of the American people by actually manufacturing the motorcycle in this country.

The "American commuter" cycle was designed to be more quiet and with better gas mileage than those produced for use in Japan and in other parts of the world.

"The Lincoln plant was a result of the rapid sales growth of Kawasaki and a logical extension fo the Kawasaki corporate philosophy," Hamawaki said.

The first motorcycles sold in this country nine years ago were designed exclusively for the American market; and since then, all marketing, research and development activities of Kawasaki have originated in the United States, Hamawaki said.

"It is a logical extension of this philosophy for Kawasaki products to be manufactured by Americans in America," he said.

Kawasaki officials said the company is buying more and more of the component parts of its American motorcycles in the United States.

Cuts Time Loss

This will also cut down on time for ordering parts for motorcycle repairs, they said.

Yotsumoto feels that the helmet law requiring motorcycle riders to wear helmets is an "excellent rule."

There has been such a law in Japan for many years and offenders are fined as on any other traffic violation, he said. Nebraska lawmakers are expected to act next week on the proposed legislation.

Transformers Force Dimming Of County-City Building Lights

BY NANCY HICKS Star Staff Writer

Local politicians and their staffs are offically in the dark and will be for several months.

Many lights at the County-City Building were turned off Friday morning and visitors and employes wandered down darkened halls.

The reason for the lights-off policy is not financial savings but overloading of the building's transformers.

The transformers, which have inadequate ventilation, cannot currently handle both the air conditioning and hot water needs of the County-

No More Steam

In past years the K Street power plant has provided steam heat for the building's hot water boilers. But this year the Lincoln Electric System (LES) notified county officials that they will not provide steam this summer, according to County Commissioner Robert Colin.

The $4,000 monthly cost to furnish steam to the building was too high, Colin said he was told. Without the K Street plant help, the building will have to choose between hot water and air conditioning. "I guess when that time comes we'll just have to flip a coin," Colin joked.

Months To Go Correcting the ventilation problem and installing a throw-over switch, which will assure a continuous supply of power to the building should LES have a power failure, will take at least three months, Colin estimates.

In anticipation of problems, Building Superintendent Henry Lorenz has asked each department to use as few lights as possible and most of the hallway lights have been turned off. One perplexed citizen, stepping out of an elevator this morning, said, The lights on this floor are off too. Do you think anyone is working

The jail and the cafeteria, both located on the city's half of the building, will need hot water during the summer months.

Colin anticipates that the boiler for the county side of the building will be turned off during the hot, air conditioning season, while the cityside boiler will remain operating.

"If we want to wash our hands we'll have to go the the city side," said Colin.

The energy problem in the building has been increasing as more offices and more equipment were moved into the building.

The former County-City Building Committee had studied the problem for several years and at one point paid for a study to find solutions for the electricity overload problem.

'We just never got anything done," Colin ad-

Already At Work

A new Building Commission, a semiautonomous group with some lay representation, has already begun to take action on the electrical problem and other unsolved building maintenance problems.

The transformer situation is not the only long-term problem at the building, Colin said. For example, motors installed to produce electricity during periods of power failure can only operate for 30 minutes at a time, he said. The exhaust pipes from the motors were never properly insulated, and the hot exhaust pipes run next to water pipes leading to the engine radiator. The water, which is to cool the engines, becomes hot and the engines overheat,

Fort Calhoun Power Station Running Again

Omaha (AP) - After three months of inactivity for refueling, the Omaha Public Power District's (OPPD) Fort Calhoun Nuclear Station returned to commercial service

During the shutdown, the major turbine generator was inspected, while 41 of the unit's 133 nuclear fuel assemblies were removed and replaced.

The plant will now operate for about 16 months before refueling again. During each refueling period, about one-third of the nuclear assemblies are replaced.

OPPD officials said a sustained nuclear reaction began in the plant's reactor last Sunday, and that since then, lowpower tests have been performed.

The unit was phased into the OPPD commercial system Friday at 20% of capacity, and will gradually be increased to its rate as the overall index, full, 455,000-kilowatt capacity in June.

The owners have been donating small strips of right-ofway to the county, said County Engineer Mary Nuernberger.

Five different landowners donated right-of-way land, averaging about a fiftieth of an acre each, for two recently approved federal aid bridge replacement projects, Nuernberger said. The landowners, Daniel Benes, Ray Johnson, Henry
